Stretching is crucial in preventing injuries and reduces the development of future health risks. We offer a new approach to assisted stretching - a form of static stretching, whereby the therapists exert a gentle force to decrease tension build-up in the muscles and joints.

Stretching the fibres and tissues activates the deep postural muscles, correcting muscle imbalances. This preventative process improves the overall fitness level and reduces the risk of strain and injury while exercising or playing sports. A session of deep stretches with the therapist will leave the guest feeling more mobile and agile during everyday life activities.

The AirPod is a safe, non-medical wellness device that delivers a 35% increase in oxygen delivered under three pressure settings. Under increased pressure, oxygen is dissolved into the blood plasma leading to higher amounts of oxygen being delivered to the body's tissues, organs and brain to aid repair, regeneration and relaxation.

Although it is a fairly modern recognised solution, oxygen therapy has become a widely popular performance enhancing strategy among professional athletes and is constantly used in sports preparation, recovery and overall wellness.

It may also assist with some neurological conditions and cognitive improvement. It is a safe form of therapy and side effects are very rare.
